

Welcome to the Mullinahone website Mullinahone is situated roughly half-way between Clonmel town and Kilkenny city in County Tipperary Ireland,.

It's most famous son was Charles Kickham (1828-1882), writer, balladeer and Fenian leader. He was born in the village and is buried in the parish cemetery. The modern parish of Mullinahone is a low-lying broad valley area, for the most part, two to three hundred feet above sea level in South-East Tipperary.

It reaches its highest point of 1,088 feet on the legendary mountain of Slievenamon, its southern boundary.
